Peace Parley Plans Facing New Obstacle

Molotov's Latest Surprise Moves Are Termed "Delaying Tactics"

NEW STUMBLING BLOCK DEVELOPS (BULLETIN)

PARIS, July 6.—(INS)—A new stumbling block in the Big Four foreign ministers' conference developed today when Soviet Russia insisted that a two-thirds instead of a majority rule must prevail at the forthcoming peace conference.

The ministers' deputies were deadlocked over this issue this morning, with the American, British and French delegates standing pat for the majority rule in the committees at least to enable the peace conference to get moving.

PARIS, July 6.—(INS)—Foreign ministers of the U. S., France and Britain united today in opposition to Soviet attempts to impose procedural rules on the forthcoming peace conference.

The three western powers were also at odds with Russia for barring China's inclusion as an inviting party to the conference, and for its eleventh-hour demand that German problems be discussed prior to the convocation.

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov's motives in suddenly blocking the road to the conference arranged at long last by Secretary of State Byrnes are still unexplained.

"Delaying Tactics"

Informed American sources, however, claimed Molotov reverted to the "delaying tactics" Byrnes accused him of earlier. They suggested the new "Soviet stall" in Paris came on orders from higher-ups in Moscow.

Soviet Expropriates German Property In East Austria Sector

VIENNA, July 6.—(INS)—The Soviet Union announced today it has expropriated all former German-owned property in East Austria, including oil fields and refineries.

All industrial plants in the Russian zone of Vienna were also confiscated.

The Soviet news agency Tass disclosed the Red government's action in reports printed in Vienna's morning newspapers. Tass said Col. Gen. Kurassow, commander in chief of Russian forces in Austria, ordered the seizures under the Potsdam clauses covering authority to confiscate property formerly owned by enemy nations as reparations.

The Austrian government was not informed officially of the action, but the chancellor said it would issue a statement later today.

Plant Erection Will Be Started About July 15

Contract For Propane-Air Plant Near Ellwood City Is Awarded

WILL BE AID TO GAS SERVICE HERE

On or about July 15 ground will be broken in Franklin township near Ellwood City for the foundations of the propane-air plant which the Manufacturers Light & Heat Co. is erecting as a part of its $1,500,000 investment in this general area for improved service to natural gas users.

In making this announcement today, F. W. Burdette, local manager in New Castle of the natural gas company, revealed that the Civilian Production Administration has approved this construction.

The contractor on this project is J. F. Pritchard & Co. of Kansas City, Mo., who built the company's Ellwood City compressor station in 1940. The gas company official believes that the Pritchard organization will again employ local labor for much of the new construction.

To Unload Material

According to Mr. Burdette, the grading of the B. & O. railroad siding has been completed. Within a few days this new siding at the company's compressor station will be used for the unloading of a variety of construction materials. It will also be employed for the unloading of 16 giant propane storage tanks, each 70 feet by 9 feet. Each tank has a capacity of 30,000 gallons.

Asserts A-Bomb Pacific Test Proves Hideous Force Of Blast

In the following article Clark Lee, noted International News Service correspondent, blames incompetent reporting and biased statements of some naval air force officers for confusion over the Bikini atomic bomb test. Lee asserts the bomb has proved beyond doubt its hideous force.

By CLARK LEE
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)

BIKINI, July 6.—By this time the American public must be pretty thoroughly confused about exactly what took place at Bikini when the atomic bomb burst in multi-colored violence at 9 a. m. last Monday.

Such confusion still exists here among those who witnessed the unleashing of atomic energy for the fourth time in the world's history and is undoubtedly shared by the people back home.

Incompetent Reporting

If so it is due in large measure to some of the most irresponsible and incompetent reporting this writer has seen in 17 years of newspaper work as well as to occasional biased and misleading statements by naval officers or army airmen, and to the general atmosphere of unreality that seemed to overhang the whole operation.

This last observation, however, does not apply in any way to the actual functioning of the plan. Admiral W. H. P. Blandy's joint task force did a superb operational job from top to bottom. Even the public relations setup, which had been subjected to justifiable criticism, pulled itself together on "A" day and performed very ably its task of getting news broadcasts and pictures to the American people.

It wasn't the fault of the public relations officers that much of that news was unseasoned observation resembling highly colored fiction. Veteran newsmen did a competent job but a number of others, most of them newcomers to seagoing reporting, furnished their readers half-cooked biased versions of what happened.

Senate Debate On New OPA Measure To Open Monday

Storm Of Opposition Is Indicated When New Bill Reaches Senate Floor

ASSERT PRESIDENT FAVORS NEW BILL

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(INS)—Authoritative sources disclosed today that President Truman will sign the new OPA bill provided the measure can weather the gathering storm of opposition which will break when senate debate opens Monday.

A confident of the president declared that the chief executive undoubtedly will sign the bill if it is sent to the White House in its present form, despite his objections to some of its features.

The president was pictured as feeling that with the Taft amendment eliminated, the administration would have a workable bill, although the White House would prefer a measure continuing price controls substantially without change.

Permits Price Rises

The new bill permits substantial price rises to the consumer, as did its vetoed predecessor. It also deprives OPA of its former authority transferring controls over food to the secretary of agriculture.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Ky., expressed hope that the new legislation, which revives the OPA and restores price controls until June 30, 1947, could be enacted by congress within a week or 10 days.

Before that, however, the bill restoring the law which expired Sunday faces opposition of the strongest kind and predictions are (Continued on Page Two)

Prepare Bikini Target Fleet For Second Test

Vessels Being Rearranged For Shallow Water Atomic Bomb Test July 25

BIKINI, July 6.—(INS)—Vessels of the Bikini target fleet were being rearranged today in preparation for the shallow water atomic bomb detonation tentatively scheduled for July 25.

Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy said that plans for the target array for the second Bikini bomb still were in the tentative stage.

The USS Nevada—bulldozer target in the overhead test—has been towed out of the inner cluster of ships temporarily while moorings are being altered.

Could Repair Independence

In reviewing results of the Monday explosion, Blandy said that the ing was called as a "round-table" discussion of "things on which we can reach agreement." But he added:

Divergence Of Opinion

"There's plenty of room for some divergence of opinion."

Sen. Lucas (D) Ill., subcommittee chairman on hearing of the operation of the Independence could be repaired and made ready to fight against despite her buckled decks.

Two Killed In Gun Battle In Illinois Hotel

Policeman And Texas Oil Man Dead—Second Policeman Is Wounded

(BULLETIN)

CENTRALIA, Ill., July 6.—(INS)—Two men, one of them a policeman and the other a Texas oil promoter, were shot and killed in a gun battle in a Centralia hotel today.

Another policeman was wounded. Authorities said that the victims were Policemen Vaughn 68, and Otis H. Gibson, 49, the latter an oil operator and promoter from Texas.

Wounded was Policeman Delmus Owens, 38.

Police charged that Gibson opened fire on the policemen when they were called to the hotel to quell a disturbance. Gibson allegedly was attempting to force his way into the room of a woman acquaintance who refused to see him.

Three Are Killed In Auto Crash In New York City

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—Three persons were killed and six others were injured today in a head-on crash between a truck and a sedan on the East River drive.

The dead were identified as Florence Conroy, 20; Vera Conroy, 22; and John Sheehan, 23, all of New York. Police said the truck, operated by William Renke, one of those seriously hurt, jumped the center safety island separating the north and south roadways of the drive and collided with the sedan.

Congress May Be In Session Until August

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(INS)—A heavy program of urgent legislation today promised to delay congressional adjournment until the first part of August.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) has abandoned hope of bringing the current session to a close on his original goal of July 20.

Rayburn refused to make any new predictions, commenting that he could not at present see any earlier prospect than the "very latter part of July."

The speaker pointed out that the OPA, the British Loan, the Atomic Energy Control Bill, Social Security legislation, congressional reorganization and several important appropriations conference reports remained on the house agenda. He observed:

"I can't for the life of me see how we can finish that program in two weeks."

Pearl Harbor Probe Report Is Due Shortly

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(INS)—The 10-man Pearl Harbor investigating committee, facing a July 10 deadline for reporting to Congress, met today to survey its field of agreement and dissent on who was to blame for the 1941 Jap sneak attack.

Ready for the six Democrat and four Republican members was a subcommittee's "factual" summary of evidence taken during more than three months of public hearings. Out of this is to come a majority report and one or more minority reports from Republican members.

Rep. Keefe (R-Wis.), a subcommittee member, said today's meeting chairman, has predicted that the joint House-Senate group would be together on at least two recommendations.

1 Elimination of the statute of limitations during wartime on matters involving national security. Congress was compelled to pass special legislation extending the statute of limitations covering the 1941 Pearl Harbor commanders and other Army-Navy personnel.

2 Coordination and streamlining of intelligence operations in the armed forces and state department. President Truman already has set up a "super-intelligence" agency to meet this need.

Truman In Tour Of Gettysburg

THURMONT Md., July 6.—(INS)—President Truman today was to tour the historic battleground of Gettysburg where the armies of the North defeated General Robert E. Lee's invasion and turned the tide against the Southern Confederacy in the American Civil War.

One of the chief executive's prized possessions—a gift from Generalissimo Josef Stalin—is a collection of rare volumes of eyewitness accounts of the war that nearly a century ago welded the divided states into a single union.

New York Meat Supply Catching Up To Demand

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—Meat rolled into New York today and prices went steadily downward as supply began catching up with demand.

C. F. House, government market analyst, said large shipments of hogs already have arrived in New York City and cattle should arrive in substantial quantities in Jersey City by Monday.

House and Joseph Cohn, counsel for the New York wholesale meat dealers, agreed that the increased supply of meat would bring prices far below the exorbitant levels of the black market.

Cohn predicted prices would be driven down to about 10 or 12 cents a pound over OPA ceilings instead of the black market gouge of double ceiling price.

PA NEW OBSERVES

Workmen were noted Friday afternoon installing the "dam" just below the South Mill street bridge, so that the children could go in swimming again at that point this summer. An interested group of children was watching the work with interest so that they might be the first to plunge into the newly constructed temporary pool.

Park employees were kept busy throughout Friday, cleaning up the park grounds after the avalanche of visitors that descended on the park over the Fourth of July. One of the city trucks was loaded down with waste and other refuse that had been scattered over the park area.

Traffic over the East Washington street bridge was traveling at a snail's pace early Friday afternoon. Workmen were engaged in repainting the traffic lines on the street and while the lines dried on one side of the bridge, the area was blocked off necessitating one lane of traffic east and one lane west.

Many Volunteer Information On Chicago Youth

CHICAGO, July 6.—(INS)—Police were kept busy today interviewing volunteers who professed to have information on the whereabouts of William Heines in connection with the Suzanne Degnan kidnapping-killing.

Woman assured him Heines was innocent. Capt. Timothy O'Connor said one innocent. Her reason:

"My dog told me," she said. "I read the newspapers to him and he indicates whether the items are right or wrong. He thinks this boy is innocent."

Promise Fresh Pork Supply Next Week In Chicago

Also Declare Prices Will Be Below Last Week's Black Market Levels

CHICAGO, July 6.—(INS)—Chicago consumers learned today that fresh pork will be available in every retail butcher shop in the city by early next week at prices below last week's black market level.

Stockyard sources made the prediction as a shipment of 30,000 hogs, the largest for any day since last winter, and the biggest for any July day in three years, poured into the yards yesterday.

As hog prices fell 75 cents to $1.50 below those of Wednesday, distribution experts predicted the rise in production and sharp cut in live costs of hogs to packers will bring cheaper prices in retail circles within three days.

Cattle receipts also increased yesterday to 9,700 head, the largest for a Friday since December 1943.

The shipment totaled only 749 a week ago and 1,493 the same date a year ago.

All packing plants went into heavy production and their spokesmen said they would have fresh cuts ready for their trade by late today.

Meanwhile, wheat and oats in the grain market declined a few cents from Wednesday's prices, but corn remained about the same.

Wheat sold for about $2.15 a bushel, three cents lower, and oats for about $1.02 to $1.04, one to two cents lower.

'Hell Raising' At Conventions Of Vets Rapped Firemen's Mascot Killed By Truck

COLUMBUS, O., July 6.—(INS)—"Hell-raising" at National conventions of veterans' organizations was hit today by another convention of ex-GIs.

The veterans doing the criticizing are attending a Methodist-veterans conference in Columbus.

The Methodist ex-fighting men said they disagreed with the "principals" of the existing veterans organizations during a panel discussion on the subject. Most of them added that they thought the good done by the groups was "outweighed."

The conference also expressed displeasure at being set apart from the rest of the civilian population.

One speaker said veterans soon would be excluded from everything if they began to form exclusive groups.

PHILADELPHIA, July 6.—(INS)—Brownie, a mongrel fox terrier, adopted by Philadelphia firemen as a mascot, will answer no more alarms.

The dog wandered into Engine Company 59 about six months ago and immediately became the company mascot.

Brownie used to dash after the engines each time they went out—and chase them part of the way.

But today, when an alarm came in, Brownie dashed out after the first engine, only to be struck by the second as it pulled out of the firehouse.

Brownie was killed. Ironically, the call turned out to be a false alarm. Engine Company 59 is located at 22nd and Hunting Park avenue.

Solve Mystery Of Missing Body

LINCOLN, Ill., July 6.—(INS)—The mystery of the missing body today was solved.

Lincoln police began an excited search when an Alton freight train crew reported discovery of a woman's shoe, a stocking and miscellaneous items of clothing tangled on the front of the train engine.

A search along the railroad tracks for the body of the "train victim" was started. Then a message from the Elkhart operator revealed that a woman passenger had accidentally set her luggage on the track at that station while she went into the station to check her tickets. When she returned, the operator explained, the freight train had come and gone, taking with it the luggage.

His postwar occupations ranged from blacksmith to mortician, mine pump runner and politician. He was elected to the Hazelton council where he served as president in 1906.

Plumber's Torch Explodes; None Hurt

The father suffered a fracture of the right ankle and the son has an injury to the right shoulder, and abrasions of the right elbow.

Returning Americans Give Some Impressions Of Present Day Russia

WASHINGTON, July 6.—(INS)—American style beer flows as freely as vodka in Moscow's post war night clubs as the Russian dancers "distort the jitterbug."

That is the report brought back today from the land of the Soviets by James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, who walked right through the "Iron curtain."

Carey got his peek at the "Red Russia" while attending the Moscow meeting of the executive bureau of the world federation of trade unions, which next plans to send a commission to Japan to investigate its occupation policy.

Russian Night Life

Russian night life was described by Carey as shades of the USA. American bands give out the hot beat till the husky Russians rock the floor with their living.

He added significantly that the Russian dance floors are larger than the two-by-four spots which seem to accommodate Americans.

Another American who viewed Russian recreation, R. J. Thomas, vice-president of the CIO's United Automobile Workers, joined with Carey in admitting that the Russian imitation of American life "just can't compete" but maintained that the Russians are ahead on one point—"cultural life." Thomas declared:

Preparing Pool In Neshannock

The gates would have been placed several days ago had there not been high water. It is probable the pool will be ready for swimmers early next week.

Rome Mourns Loss Of Trieste

ROME, July 6.—(INS)—Rome shut down all activity at 11 o'clock today and mourned for three minutes over the loss of Trieste.

A protest rally was scheduled for tonight.

The Big Four foreign ministers this week agreed to internationalize the port of Trieste, granting a share in its government to Yugoslavia, Mich.

Predict Larger Supply Of Meats

CHICAGO, July 6.—(INS)—The American Meat Institute promised consumers today that better meat supplies were in the offing.

The institute said:

"As the result of removal of OPA price controls on the livestock and meat industry, sharply increased quantities of meat animals continue to come to market.

"Prices were a bit lower (yesterday) or steady on cattle and sharply lower on hogs in many markets, an indication that when meat from these animals goes to market prices, while being above the fictional prices of OPA ceilings, will be below the prices for which most meat has been selling through black market channels."

Superintendent Named

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 6.—(INS)—Cyril W. Woolcock, 36 today was named superintendent of the Uniontown school, succeeding J. Nelson Mowls, who assumed a similar position at Grove City.

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—Trans-Atlantic air travel won a new convert today—88-year-old Mrs. Margaret Cullen of County Tyrone, Eire.

Mrs. Cullen, who flew to New York on the first leg of a trip to live with a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Beer, of Toronto, Canada, said she liked the trip "well enough." She didn't care, however, for "the after effects."

There's smudges of paint on my trousers, my hands are a little gray. I've rubbed and I've scrubbed and I've polished, but I can't seem to rub it away. ## Eviction Notice By O'Daniel Is Headed For Court

DALLAS, Tex., July 6.—(INS)—The eviction notice served on a Pacific veteran and his family by Mike O'Daniel, son of the Texas senator, appeared headed today for a court battle.

Lewis P. McAdams, chairman of the Dallas American veterans committee, said an attorney had been retained to protect the rights of former Pfc. Wesley Brient who was ordered out of young O'Daniel's apartment house.

Brient, himself, celebrated the anniversary of his first week back home yesterday by joining about 50 other veterans in picketing the apartment building.

The veterans members of the AVC carried signs reading "OPA goes down, O'Daniel goes up."

"O'Daniel filibusters in Washington, evicts in Dallas."

"AVC believes in OPA."

Brient, whose family includes his wife and son, Gary, four, said he had been told first that his rent was being boosted $70 to $100 and later had been asked to move.

The AVC said the eviction dispute began Monday, the first day after the death of OPA which Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel fought wholeheartedly.

PEACE PARLEY PLANS FACING NEW OBSTACLE

China by saying that since China had not taken part in the Paris discussions, she should not sponsor invitations to other nations to study treaty drafts drawn up by the Big Four.

Byrnes' position was that Big Four discussions at Moscow empowered the council of foreign ministers to convene the peace conference, and that China was a member of the council.

He charged Molotov had directed a "gratuitous insult" at China by refusing to include her as an inviting power.

Molotov's Action Perplexes

Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Bevin began today's session completely perplexed over Molotov's insistence that procedural rules be included in the conference invitations.

The Anglo-American view on this matter was that every conference adopts its own rules of procedure, and therefore the conference to formally end World War II should not have rules imposed upon it.

There was much speculation over Molotov's sudden eagerness to discuss German problems before summoning the 21 Allied nations, particularly in view of the fact that he has long avoided doing just that.

Byrnes listened in amazement to the new Soviet proposal, then said: "I held General (Lucius) Clay (deputy American military governor in Germany) in Paris for five days awaiting the discussion. Now I have sent him back to Germany."

"Molotov" wants to spring the talks on a few minutes' notice.

Sixteen senators announced their support of the meat de-control provision and 11 backed the dairy de-control amendment.

Supports Meat De-Control

Sen. George (D) Ga., finance committee chairman, also threw his influential support behind the meat de-control amendment. He stated: "I'm for decontrol of meat. We're headed into a beef and pork shortage next spring—there's no way to avoid it. It's coming whether or not we have decontrol of meat. But decontrol will get rid of the black market, so that the meat dealer doesn't have to go out of business or lie to his customers every morning."

The senate included in the earlier OPA bill, subsequently vetoed by President Truman, an amendment to end controls June 30 on major foods, but it was rejected by the house and senate conferees.

Inclusion of the food decontrol amendment would prove a sharp blow to the president's hopes.

A strong light was being also over the Barkley compromise for the Taft amendment. The latter was rejected by the senate banking and currency committee in favor of the Barkley proposal, which OPA Administrator Porter termed acceptable.

RETURNING AMERICANS GIVE IDEAS

"I saw a ballet—the best I had ever seen—and the place was crowded with workers. I can't conceive of inducing a bunch of Ford workers to see a ballet."

Thomas also found the Russian people greatly interested in sports. The labor leader said "one of the favorite sports for women is just running. I never saw girls run like they could run."

He explained that the women probably develop their stamina because no favoritism is shown in the factories where they work—"and I mean no favoritism. If something weighs a hundred pounds, the girl lifts a hundred pounds no matter how many men are around."

Thomas saw further evidence of a comfortable or "American" way of life in "seven-passenger luxury cars that look like 1941 Packards." He added that imitating these "super de luxe jobs" took the Russians a long time because they were practically "custom built."

Carey, who stuck to night club entertainment, declared that the Russians "evidently are trying to copy American cooking but it still tastes Russian."

Carey lamented that it is also difficult now to get an honest-to-goodness Russian souvenir in Moscow. He said: "I wanted to buy some gifts to bring home but everything looked as if it had been made in Brooklyn. When I told the storekeeper this, he thought it was the nicest thing anyone had ever said about his goods."

Bilbo's Re-Election
Stirs No Enthusiasm

WASHINGTON, July 6.—All over the country there will be gloom at the outcome of Mississippi's election. The man Bilbo is back for another six years after a primary campaign of exceptional demagoguery on the explosive theme of white supremacy.

One of Bilbo's chief assets was the series of attacks directed at him from outside the state. He told the Northerners time after time that the North was trying to dictate who should be senator of the sovereign state of Mississippi.

To prove his case, he waved editions of national magazines carrying articles showing Bilbo's record. His listeners were not likely to read such articles. But they understood that outsiders were trying to interfere with their democratic rights. The carpet-bag threat is still a bitter memory in the deep South.

Federal Benefits
The other string that Bilbo twanged was the promise of federal benefits—subsidies for the farmers, bonuses for the veterans and so on down the line. Though the carpet-bag rule ended many years ago the truth is that Mississippi is an economic colony of the North, dependent on the favors of either big business or big government. Demagogues like Bilbo hold out the promise of crumbs from Washington or New York. Such demagogues are themselves the end product of a system of colonial dependence.

In Georgia, an active and effective revolt is aimed at this system. Governor Ellis Arnall, who has made himself the leader of the New South, wants to give his region an equal chance to develop industry and end the colonialism which depresses the South. He is a producer of raw materials. That is the meaning of Arnall's suit in the Supreme Court to compel an equalization of railroad freight rates.

At the same time, Arnall is fighting such ugly manifestations of frustration and fear as the Ku Klux Klan. Besides being an enormously shrewd politician—which you have to be in the South, where politics is really competitive—Arnall has courage and imagination.

Last Gasp
This may be wishful thinking, but it is just possible that Bilbo's narrow victory over the field in Mississippi is the last gasp of old-fashioned Bourbonism in the South. The stirrings of something like a revolution can be heard from below the Mason-Dixon line.

At any rate, in one department of southern life a big change is taking place. Negroes are voting in Democratic primaries in state after state. In some states it has given rise to threats and intimidation, but elsewhere it appears to be accepted. In Texas the Progressive Voters League of Dallas reports that out of 600,000 Negroes in the state, 150,000 have paid the poll tax, and 50,000 are expected to do so at the primary on July 27. Moreover, candidates are appealing for the Negro as they would for white votes.

Same Attitude
Many southern newspapers are leading the way in a sane attitude toward this issue. Some editors have pointed out that unless they are forced into a rigid racial bloc, Negro voters are likely to vote along the same lines as white voters. This was put very well by the Columbia Record of Columbia, S. C., a state incidentally, which has taken special steps to circumvent the 15th amendment: "The Negroes are no more united than the whites. They have different and divergent views. Normally some of them would vote for one candidate and some for another, as the experience of North Carolina, Virginia and other states in which they already vote proves."

Perhaps the real test has not yet come. We are still in a period of prosperity, or comparative prosperity. In a slump, with fierce competition for jobs, racial hatreds might flame over the issue of equality at the poll.

Political Punching Bag
Bilbo used the Fair Employment Practices committee as a political punching bag in his campaign. He promised to filibuster against an FEPC law. This coincided with release of the Fair Employment committee's final report from Chairman Malcolm Ross containing this significant statement: "Studies made by and for the committee since V-J day show that the wartime gains of Negro, Mexican-American and Jewish workers are being dissipated through an unchecked revival of discriminatory practices. The future status of minority group workers depends, the committee believes, on the course of action to be taken by congress relative to passage of Federal Fair Employment legislation."

To the demagogue from Mississippi with a brassy voice, that is a challenge. Six more years of Bilbo is an affliction no optimism for the future can gloss over.

Bible Thought
This is he that came by water and blood, even Jesus Christ; not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth witness because the Spirit is truth.—I John 5:6

The State Police Say:
The mere fact that you legally had the right-of-way will in no way absolve you from responsibility in an accident. Remember this is true even when other violate your right-of-way through ignorance, error or emergency. Always be prepared to yield the right-of-way to avoid an accident.

Two years ago I paid fifty cents an hour.

Last year, on his request, I raised that to seventy-five cents.

Last Sunday he told me he would have to have $1.25 an hour.

"Why?" I asked him.

"Well, everything has gone up, and people are getting more," he replied.

"Don't you raise your own vegetables and your own chickens and don't you even kill your own pigs and occasionally a steer?" I inquired.

"Yes, we do."

"And don't you even grow your own feed, so that the increase in feed prices doesn't bother you?" he asked.

"Yes, but how about clothes?" he asked.

He was wearing overalls and a pair of shoes that I had given him, and even his Sunday suit was one of mine that had become too tight for me.

"Well," I remarked, "I don't see where clothes mean an awful lot to you."

"That don't make no difference," he came back (you must pardon his English, he never went beyond the fourth grade in school). "Everybody is getting more, and I want more, too."

"Are you going to do more work or better work if I give you more money?" I asked.

"No, I don't see how I can, but everybody's getting more, so I want more, too."

And there you have it. . . Just like that farmer boy—

Presidents Have No
Chance To Relax

WASHINGTON, July 6.
IN public as in private life the little things are more upsetting than the big ones. A man can stand a streak of real adversity with unshaken urbanity, but will badly under the pin pricks of a lot of petty annoyances.

RECENT experiences of President Truman seem to point up this belief. Not that the President has begun to wilt but, considering the things that have been happening to him, it is easy to understand how he could. No one thinks that Mr. Truman lacks either courage or stamina. He would, his friends say, take a real blow like a man. For example, the refusal of Congress to heed his recommendations and the extraordinary economic and political crisis into which his course on OPA has thrust him and the country do no appall the President. Nor, it is asserted, would defeat for reelection be more than he could bear with a smile.

Also, they say, he can stand criticism and denunciation without great anger or violent resentment. That sort of thing from his opponents is part of the game and to be expected. What does upset him, however, is the fact that he can never safely be indiscreet in his conversation, even among his intimates. Nor can he privately indulge safely in the luxury of saying or writing exactly what he thinks or feels. If he relaxes his self-restraint even a little the results are unpleasant. The latest example of this was the letter he wrote to Senator Tobey, of New Hampshire, which was seized upon as an "amazing" and "unprecedented" presidential rebuke to a member of the Senate. A great deal of nonsense was written about this letter. The effort was made to show that Mr. Truman could not tolerate being differed with, that he insisted upon every senatorial letter being a "rubber stamp," etc., etc.

OF COURSE, the letter showed none of those things. Certainly, Mr. Truman would have been smarter not to have written at all, but it was a natural enough letter from a President to a senatorial friend who had frustrated him in what he considered a good plan. Also, it was a very personal letter and not at all an unfriendly letter, signed not "Harry S. Truman" but "Harry," and the absence of temper or bitterness was certainly evinced by the rather engaging words in his own handwriting at the bottom: "I come to see me."

THERE was nothing in the letter to cause real offense unless it was purposely interpreted that way, and it was so clearly personal that Senator Tobey's action in making it public is hard to defend. It was so clearly personal that the reading of it to the Senate was, to say the least, in exceedingly bad taste. The excuse that Senator Tobey did so because some of the contents had leaked into the press in garbled form is not a good excuse. For it was quite clear that he had done the leaking himself. To be sure the whole incident is a trivial one; but it is the kind of thing well calculated to rasp the nerves of a man bearing a heavy load and trying to do the best he can.

PERHAPS it will be a lesson to Mr. Truman. This personal letter which "leaked" into the press along with some private White House conversation with members of his Cabinet and chief administrative aides which "leaked" into the hostile gossip columns, ought to convince Mr. Truman that he has a job where every word is carefully weighed and considered; where his impulses are to be frank and outspoken have to be curbed; where there are very few in whom he can implicitly trust; where the luxury of expressing his feelings is denied him.

THAT makes the tough job of the presidency very tough indeed—but that is the sort of job it is. Mr. Truman, like all Presidents, is surrounded and in contact all the time with some men eager to make him trouble by "leaking," and others who with no deliberate intent to make trouble do so by indulging their own desire to seem important or curvy journalistic favor by repeating what "the President said to me."

BUT a man has to trust someone, and Mr. Truman has close to him some men incapable of breaking faith with him, thoroughly trustworthy and loyal. Mr. Charles C. Ross is one. Unfortunately, he has some of the other kind, too. The sooner he discovers who they are and gets rid of them the freer he will be from these petty annoyances which are so much more wearing on the system itself than actual misfortune. There is no fun in being on guard all the time with tongue and pen—particularly for a naturally candid and friendly man such as Mr. Truman. But that is the price of the office pays for the presidency. There are few individuals with whom he can feel absolutely safe. The next time he writes to a Republican senator he should use invisible ink.

Possibilities Of The Atom

THRIFT
One of the serious misfortunes of modern America is the practical disappearance of the old-fashioned personal and civic virtue of thrift.

In the days of our great development and progress, the habit of saving was religiously inculcated into children and youth. Former generations were taught that waste and extravagance were sins. Fathers and mothers set an example of frugality and industry. The result was a solid citizenship, self-reliant, self-sustaining, prepared to contribute to the community and national growth.

Thriftiness of Americans was the foundation of our great industries, our railroads, our agricultural production, the growth of our cities. An individual with an idea, by dint of hard work, saving and courage, expanded his idea into a small shop. By grace of the same factors the shop was developed into a small factory. When the success of the idea warranted a large factory, involving a large investment, other persons who were thrifty came forward with their savings to share the enterprise and its financial fruits.

Contrary to popular notion, the great corporations of this country were not built from the funds of the enormously rich. They were built and developed by the investments of hundreds of thousands of persons of small means—savings acquired by hard work and sensible living. These investments themselves were a manifestation of thrift, for they were not made in a spirit of gambling for quick and fabulous returns, but in the expectation of fair interest.

There was far more to thrift, however, than financial gain. Thrift was a moral stabilizer. It brought that self-respect which is the foundation of solid character. It inspired a spirit of independence. It commanded the respect of others. Poor Richard summarized the ethical importance of thrift in his proverb—"An empty sack cannot stand upright." The thrifty individual was able to pay his share as a citizen for public improvements, to make his fair contribution to charity, to help along the worthy undertakings to support the church. He was, in short, an asset to his community.

It was thrift which conquered the wilderness, which brought the pioneers under the plow, which built the homes of pioneers and provided the taxes for schools. It was thrift which supported the government. It was thrift which kept a jealous eye on public expenditures. It was thrift which punished waste and graft in the name of politics.

Unfortunately for all of us, individually and collectively, there has developed in America in recent years a contempt for this primary virtue. We have heard thrift ridiculed and repudiated by men in high places. We have heard the strange doctrine that we can spend ourselves rich. We have seen the national government set a pattern of unbridled spending and unlimited borrowing. We have heard the thrifty denounced as "bores," the "have-nots" pampered and the "haves" characterized as "anti-social."

Along with these strange doctrines has come another—that thrift is unnecessary, because the government will see to it that the thrifless are rewarded out of the taxes of the thrifty. We see scheme after scheme designed to unload on the backs of the thrifty and industrious the lazy and wasteful. We see attempts to limit incomes of those who strive and earn—to take away by confiscatory taxes or other devices the fruits of lifetime labors and "redistribute" them in the name of "social welfare." We hear men in high authority repudiating the Cleveland doctrine that "it is not the duty of the government to support the people, but the duty of the people to support the government."

No stronger barrier could be erected against inflation, no greater impetus given to the expansion of our industries and the assurance of ample employment, no better incentive to industrial harmony, no finer influence in behalf of good citizenship and sound government, than a genuine nation-wide revival of that almost forgotten attribute of our forefathers—thrift.

WARNING GROWN-UPS

When little children are about, I'd warn all grown-ups to watch out.

We put up signs, in symbols clear, To show that "Workingtons are near."

We warn the casual passers-by, Whoever they be, of dangers nigh. We line the roads with "Drive with Care!" And many a board that shouts: "Beware!"

But, said it is no signs appear To warn us oldersters— "Children near!"

When tempers flare begin to burn Men utter words no child should learn.

And in our worst of moods we do So many things no child should view. Once upon when children are about, We—who are grown should all "Watch out!"

The Parent Problem

By GARY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

HELP CURED MENTAL PATIENT READJUST SELF

Yesterday we observed the wide difference between the prevailing attitude toward a mental patient and a physical patient and how the stunted public attitude toward the mentally sick retards recovery during treatment and hinders recuperation and adaptation to normal life in the family and community.

With so many parents and children who are mentally under-the-weather or mentally ill, and the obvious effect thereof on the other children of the family, we all need to be concerned and ask ourselves how we might do well our part as parents, neighbors, teachers, religious workers or educational or civic leaders.

Now let us consider the parent or youth discharged from a mental hospital. How may we best help this person adapt himself comfortably in his family and community to the end that his recovery might be permanent?

Person Not Patient
In the first place, we shall treat him as a person no different from other persons, and not as a patient. We shall also try to get out friends to treat him as a like fashion. We shall avoid any suggestion that he cannot do what others do, take the same sort of responsibility and enjoy the same sort of social intercourse, though we might wisely set the stage so as to protect him, without its being obvious, from undue fatigue, worry and excitement.

Most of all, he needs to feel worthwhile as a member of the family.

What People Say

International News Service

VICKSBURG, Miss.—Secretary of War Robert Patterson: "A strong United States is a first step—an essential condition—for the world to be kept out of chaos, or permitted once again to plunge itself in ruinous war."

SEATTLE—Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr.: "Probably the best defense against guided atomic missiles lies in our ability to keep the would-be attacker at the greatest possible distance from our shores."

NEW YORK—Frank Gamett, New York newspaper publisher reports on a survey of Germany: "It is better for us to stay in Germany for 15 or 20 years with a constantly increasing military force, than to permit conditions to develop in mid-Europe that will make it necessary for our sons to fight there in another world war."

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y.—Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commanding general of the army ground forces: "If we want a lasting peace, we must do it together. We must develop a winning team at home to produce all-Americans to play on the world team."

Philippine Independence Day

On the 170th anniversary of American independence, and a day short of the first anniversary of its official liberation from the Japanese enemy, the Philippine Commonwealth became an independent republic of sovereign equality among the nations of the world.

The happy occasion was made doubly happy by the circumstances of its occurrence. The date of Philippine independence was decided upon 12 years ago. No one then could have imagined the tragic period which lay ahead for the commonwealth and its protector nation. Or, if that period could have been foreseen, few would have believed that the promise of independence could be realized now.

But that promise survived through the black days of defeat in the early months of 1942. Those black days served to bind the United States and the Philippines more closely. Bataan and Corregidor became enshrined in the hearts of Filipinos and Americans alike through the exemplary heroism of the men of both nations who defended them.

Nor did the Filipinos' courage fail with the departure of the Americans and the subsequent occupation. Neither the Japs' cajolery nor their brutality could break it. The Filipinos fought with the courage of the free men which they were then in spirit and have now become in fact.

The Philippines' independence day dawned upon many parts of the world where freedom and independence are still in doubt. On their own side of the globe the Filipinos see civil strife in a free neighbor nation and serious unrest among the colonial peoples of the East. Elsewhere in the world the pressure of the strong upon the weak is not abated. All of which must make their complete freedom even more precious.

For America this day of Philippine independence is almost as proud an event as it is for the islanders themselves. It marks the complete success of our one great colonial venture and the complete vindication of the policies employed.

During more than 50 years the Filipinos have advanced, under our guidance, from a woefully low estate to a level of literacy and living standards unmatched in the Orient except in Japan. And the end of that half century finds the mutual friendship and admiration of America and the Philippines stronger than ever before.

And so America says to its friends in the far Pacific: Long live the Philippine Republic! National independence has never been given or received more proudly.

Veto And The Atom Bomb

After the proposal made by our own government for international control of the atom bomb, by degrees, as the nations prove their good faith, and adequate safeguards can be taken, the Soviet government came forth with a counter proposal in which any country, as in United Nations procedure, would have the right to veto phases of the atom control as time went on and the situation developed.

Many apologists for Soviet Russia immediately came forth with the cry that there was little difference between the two proposals and that they could be easily reconciled.

As a matter of fact, this cry is diametrically opposed to the truth. The veto would make all the difference in the world in that it would permit any nation to block international control at any stage of the game and set the world stage for more frightfulness.

Before we consider this particular "atomic control veto" let us recall that the veto reserved at the request of Stalin in the United Nations has come near to making that body ineffective on more than one occasion and has left the road open to the playing of power politics. Moscow regards its veto privilege as if it expects to use it to enforce its own peculiar kind of international cooperation and no other. When the UN delegates ratified the veto provision it was predicted that it would nullify the influence of the court to a great extent. This prediction has proved true. What is the sense of creating an international military and naval authority to enforce world peace if a veto can be exercised at the whim of any power? Such a force might be used to "cool off" a little country like Ethiopia providing all the great powers wanted it cooled off, but certainly it couldn't go much further, in case somebody wanted to use a veto.

The atomic weapon is so deadly in its possibilities that we do not want its international control subject to the veto of any power, especially after it knows how to make and use the bomb. We have the secret of the bomb ourselves, and it will be safest to keep it to ourselves until we are sure that international control is safe, and will make for peace.

As Short Dresses Stay

Let anyone get the idea that, with the death of the OPA, the old, joyous days of complete liberty have returned, along comes the CPA (this doesn't mean Certified Public Accountant but Civilian Production Administration) with the grim statement that it "intends to enforce the restrictive provisions of Order L-85."

L-85, it appears decrees that woman's skirts must not become more voluminous than the 65 to 80 inches heretofore permitted and that dress lengths must remain at 43½ to 47 inches. The reason, presumably, is to save on still scarce dress materials.

It seems to us that, although some modifications of the edict against longer dresses might—on the esthetic basis—be in order in certain individual cases, the CPA is fundamentally right in this matter. Furthermore, men know that when radical changes in women's garb are made in the name of fashion, changes for the worst develop in every mere husband's checking account.

It's America That Pays
General Joseph T. McNarney, as military governor of the American Occupation Zone in Germany, is particularly pressing in his current monthly report in demanding administration of the Reich as an economic unit, erasing zonal boundaries to permit free flow of trade, in accordance with the Potsdam Declaration.

Of special importance is the fact, brought out by him, that zonal trade restrictions increase the difficulty and expense of the American forces, its zone being short of materials. That expense has to be borne by American taxpayers.

Our government should take forceful action with the three other Allies to end this situation. It's bad enough that we must occupy part of Germany, but unbearable if we have to pay through the nose for that doubtful "privilege."

Men's suits in Moscow now $248. Maybe they need the OPA more than we do.

Lithuanian Dancer Bride Arrives Here

Climaxing a whirlwind courtship of two weeks, Miss Julia Gausithe, a Lithuanian dancer, known on the European stage as Judy, and Sgt. William Palumbo, son of Mrs. Mary Palumbo, of 13th street, West Pittsburgh, were married, and the young bride has now arrived in West Pittsburgh where she is reunited with her husband and his family.

The young couple met in January, 1940, while they attended a dance in Regensburg, Germany. Two weeks later they were married, and the ceremony was not a hurried affair, but an elaborate wedding with a wedding gown, bridesmaids and reception. The ceremony was performed in St. Teresa's Lithuanian church, January 12, 1940.

Judy embarked from Le Havre, France, on the U. S. S. George Goethals, among 100 other war brides. Enroute she favored the audiences with her popular dances. She also managed to become acquainted with another bride, Mrs. Vera Kosalas, of Ambidge, Pa., and since her arrival here, has paid Mrs. Kosalas a visit.

"I like it here, very much," attractive Judy says in broken English, and her first buying spree was fresh fruit, which she hadn't eaten for a long, long time. As for her favorite dish, it is bananas and ice cream.

For the past five years, the charming dancer lived in Germany, but was born in Kaunas, Lithuania. In Germany she was not permitted to follow her profession as a dancer, because she was not a German. During the war years, Judy worked in a knitting mill. She is thrilled with this country, and is amazed to see the great number of cars used here for personal use. In Germany cars were used only by the military personnel.

Judy was greeted by the Palumbo family, and they are doing everything possible to make her feel at home, since the loss of her entire family during the bombings in Germany. She alone survived the terrific bombings, experienced by the people in Germany.

Judy intends to remain in this country, and has settled down to being just a housewife. She is forgetting about her dancing profession. Already she has begun to sew, a hobby which she enjoys immensely.

In speaking about the trip over, many of the brides became seasick, but upon seeing the New York skyline and the statue of liberty, they immediately began to feel much better and looked forward to their new homes in America. Coincidentally, Sgt. Palumbo arrived in this country on the same ship as his wife, only the trips were taken separately within two weeks time.

Mr. and Mrs. Palumbo will reside wherever he gets a position. Another brother in the service is Pvt. Benjamin Palumbo, who is stationed at Camp Polk, La.

Coroner Probes Racket Murders

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—(INS)—Allegheny County Coroner William D. McClelland today scheduled an inquest into the double racket murder of Frank Evans and Freddie Garrow for Thursday.

Frank Valenti, 35-year-old restaurateur and alleged "big shot" racketeer, who is being held as an accessory to the dual slaying, will be summoned to appear at the hearing.

However, his attorney, Charles Margiotti, warned that Valenti did not have to testify at the inquest.

MAN BEWILDERED BY TURNOUT FOR HIS SMALL FIRE

TOLEDO, O., July 6.—(INS)—H. H. Darrett was wondering today what would have happened if it had been a really big fire.

Darrett's automobile caught fire in downtown Toledo (total damage later was estimated at only $10) and he called the fire department. The results were overwhelming.

The fire department explained that an operator sent the alarm over the signal system from the wrong downtown box. Discovering his error, he sent out a second alarm from the correct box.

Both boxes bring a full complement of engines, hook and ladder truck and chiefs, so the result was bedlam, with apparatus responding to the first box eventually reaching Darrett's smoldering auto also.

Espionage Trial Of Soviet Officer Is Continuing

Defense Of Russian Lieutenant
Now In Progress In Seattle Court

SEATTLE, July 6.—(INS)—The defense in the espionage trial of Soviet Lt. Nicolai G. Redin today was expected to return to its attack on prosecution claims that Redin obtained secret information about a U. S. destroyer tender, the U. S. S. Yellowstone.

An attempt by the defense late yesterday to prove that information Redin allegedly bought was not secret resulted in considerable courtroom merriment and confusion and ran into trouble in general.

Ivan Zabello, a Soviet marine engineer, launched the defense attack when he testified that information allegedly obtained by Redin already was known in Russia.

Not Telling Truth
Defense Counsel Tracy E. Griffin then added, in speaking to Judge Lloyd L. Black, that "these are matters of common knowledge . . . and when the jury knows that, it will realize that Herbert Kennedy (star witness for the prosecution) is not telling the truth."

But Zabello, on cross-examination, refused to answer a number of technical questions put to him by Deputy District Attorney Allan Pomeroy regarding a Russian destroyer tender. He said he could not reveal the length, beam and draft of the vessel.

"Don't you know that the United States and Russia are allies and freely exchange information?" Pomeroy asked, sarcastically.

The witness maintained he was not authorized to reveal such facts. He balked, also, at revealing the vessel's name.

"It had a number," he said. "What was the number," Pomeroy asked.

"I cannot answer."

"You mean you do not know?"

"No, I know, but I cannot tell."

He then was questioned as to the number of guns aboard the Russian ship.

"I am not authorized to answer that question," he replied.

Their parents joined police in an all-night search.

The children, Donald Heget, 8, Richard Gunther, 6, and Richard's sisters, Joan, 3, and Helen, 5, had last been seen at neighbors on the outskirts of Lincoln Park.

Mrs. Helen Gunther, mother of three of the children and her husband, Fred, a chauffeur, said that the two boys had stayed away from home once or twice previously but never before had remained out with the two little girls beyond nightfall.

"NO ACCIDENTS REPORTED" OVER INDEPENDENCE DAY

Here's a report of the State Police of which we can all be proud. Not an automobile accident in Lawrence County over the holiday period. No premature funerals, no hospitalization for broken bones, no cars wrecked.

What caused it? There were no more traffic officers on duty, no additional highway signs erected, and traffic was at least three times the normal flow.

The answer was you—and you—and you. Lawrence County folks made safety a personal problem. Everybody drove as though he wanted to drive on the morrow. Everybody thought a little of the other fellow.

A marvelous safety record, one that proves it can be done. Let's make a habit of it. And by the way, Congratulations!

HE WHO DRIVES

Playground At Cascade Park Proves Popular

Large Numbers Of Children Served Weekly At City Playground In Operation At Park

One of the lesser publicized but highly popular playgrounds in the city of New Castle is the area located within Cascade park and operated by Mildred I. Sargent, supervisor.

The playground differs from most of the summer play spots in the city in that the group served is a migrant one, while the other recreational areas throughout the city more or less serve the neighborhood kiddies who play at the same playground day after day during the summer.

Most of the city playgrounds close in the afternoon, but the one located at the park remains open until 8 o'clock in the evening with the supervisor in charge, so that parents who bring their youngsters out to the park for an evening meal will have a place for them to play in safety while they prepare the meal or enjoy some feature of the park.

The playground's small cabin will be the center of the Girl Scouts day camp, which will begin early Monday morning when approximately 80 girls will descend upon the park for the next two weeks.

Thousands of the city children took advantage of the play area on the Fourth of July and not one accident occurred during play, was the report of the supervisor.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

family, sharing in its environment and counsel. We need to work for a happy hopeful cheerful family atmosphere with lots of smiles, laughter and fun. He needs wholesome recreation of a nature that will widen his interests outside himself, especially in other folks.

He might find outlets in a special course of study in a day or night school, and in books which give him skill and knowledge as well as in those which merely entertain, in music, in drama on the stage or screen. Surely he should see some shows and read some books, which make him laugh.

Gain From Religion
He might gain much from religion if it has balance and emphasis, doing good for others and making them happier rather than dwelling on his own shortcomings too long or often. He should gain tremendously from a religious atmosphere in the home which makes the other members there lovelier to live with.

Fortunately if this returning person has many social skills as media for enjoyment in the usual social groups of the community, or has friends who help him acquire such skills when they are lacking. Fortunately, too, if he is invited often to go places with others of his age and to serve on committees, or head up some activities in his club, Sunday school or church.

A few alert persons among his old friends who constantly think of ways to build up this person to feel comfortable and worthwhile, often celebrating his success with him, can do more for his permanent recovery than anything else we can imagine.

Most of all, we need to cultivate a sensible attitude toward the whole matter of mental illness. Let us all make of ourselves crusaders in this cause. To anyone who is very religious, no matter about his particular faith, this cause for lessening human suffering and increasing human happiness ought to make a strong appeal.

Fascist Agitators Are Arrested For Polish Pogroms

KIELCE, Poland, July 6.—(INS)—Government investigators here today arrested scores of "Fascist agitators" today and widened their probe to include police and military negligence.

General Stres, who has been placed in charge of the investigation, said more than 70 persons have already been detained, and that more arrests are expected hourly.

The bloody riots took an official toll of at least 40 lives and left more than 100 persons wounded. Four of the injured Jews are expected to die.

Sports Competition At Dean Park

Sports day was divided into two sections at Dean park playground this week because of the Fourth of July holiday. Softball games on both Wednesday and Friday mornings stimulated much competition and excitement among the many contestants.

Final standings were: Ray Giangilli, checker champion; Thelma Reynolds, jacks champion; Chris Demos and Chester Prell, horseshoe champions.

Honorable mention went to Tony Giangilli and Bob Erwin for softball throwing.

Captains of the softball teams were Dave Marusso of the winning team and Jim Dellaverson. The youngsters are looking forward to a dress show and model plane competition next week. Dorothy Naples is the playground supervisor.

St. Joseph's Group Picnic On Sunday

Vacation Is Both Work And Fun For East Brook Campers

Girls Learn Swimming, Handcraft, While Vacationing At Beautiful Site

Leaving reluctantly, more than 20 young campers at the Y. W. C. A. camp at East Brook are going home today after ten days of swimming, recreation and camp companionship.

This group of campers, the younger girls from seven to 12 years of age, have been making full use of the attractive little swimming pool which is about 100 yards down a steep little path from the camp buildings. Consisting mostly of beginners, the group has been making progress in all of the fundamentals of swimming, including correct breathing, floating, treading water, doing the backstroke and breast stroke and surface diving.

Supervised Fun
Besides that, the children have been having fun doing their own versions of diving, paddling and splashing. All of the pool activities are under the supervision of Miss Helen McQueen, assisted by junior counselors.

Up over the hill are the handsome white colonial buildings, with their long porches framed by bright colored hollyhocks. In the recreation dining room is a fireplace and a stage and behind that the kitchen with its mammoth old coal stove, good for both heating and cooking. The beds in the dormitories are camp beds and the walls are unplastered wood, but the accessories are the same as in girls' rooms anywhere—dolls, whittling paper, family photographs, bathtubs, socks tossed on the beds along with a book and a bracelet.

Another Fireplace
The handicraft room has another fireplace, a large one with a handsome fender and andirons. In here Miss Mary Tabisz has been helping the girls make plaster of paris frogs, little plaques and bracelets.

Sports and music have been under the direction of Miss Jane Kez, while those on the junior staff have been Barbara Woods, Jane Hurst, Marilyn Hoganmiller and Joanne Reed. Sylvia Saul is the camp nurse.

Older girls will move in on Tuesday with a group of business girls taking over the camp for the week-end. The camp supervisor is Miss Marion Ochampaugh.

Court Decision On Constitutionality Of Act To Go To Supreme Court Of State

HARRISBURG, July 6.—(INS)—A 15-year-old battle to free Pennsylvania's toll bridges appeared headed today for the state supreme court.

A statute enacted by the general assembly in 1945 to pave the way for purchases under a $7,000,000 ceiling was declared unconstitutional in Dauphin county court yesterday by Judge Robert E. Woodside. The money was to be drawn from the motor license fund.

Gov. Edward Martin ordered the state justice department to appeal the decision.

Judge Woodside gave the commonwealth and the Peoples Bridge Co., of Harrisburg, 10 days in which to file exceptions to his ruling.

The effect of the opinion was to restrain the state highways department from negotiations with owners of nine toll bridges, the operators of the Sunbury Bridge company had agreed to sell a span across the Susquehanna river for $650,000.

The bridge acquisition program, co-sponsored by Republican Senators M. Harvey Taylor, of Dauphin, and George N. Wade, of Cumberland, was aimed at freeing two bridges each at Harrisburg and Bethlehem and one each at Sunbury, Allentown, Clark's Ferry, Pottsville, Chambersburg and Eastwood City.

Judge Woodside pointed out that a constitutional amendment, approved by the electorate in November, 1945, limited the use of the motor license fund to highway construction and maintenance and air navigation. The Taylor-Wade bill was sent to Governor Martin May 5, 1945.

There was no provision in the amendment, designed to stop "raids" on the fund, for the purchase of bridges.

The fight to free toll bridges started in 1931 under the direction of ex-Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

The "cud" which a cow chews is a ball of food which is held in a pouch until the animal is ready to chew it. She brings it into her mouth by muscular action, re-chews it, and then swallows it into the second stomach where it is digested.

Propose Ownership Of Uranium Be Vested With World Authority

NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—American initiative in seeking to establish international control of atomic energy was implemented today with a proposal for placing

"complete and absolute" ownership of uranium and thorium production in a new world authority.

The American proposal was submitted to sub-committee number one of the United Nations atomic energy commission in the form of a memorandum by Ferdinand Eberstadt. He is an aide to Bernard Baruch, American delegate to the commission.

The memorandum envisioned activity by the authority to promote beneficial use of atomic force and production of atomic power by the authority and "others." The latter would lease denatured fissionable material for this purpose.

The 3,300-word memorandum recommended that the authority "leave to others" the development of radioactive isotopes—used as tracers in the war against disease.

Famed Painting Returned After Six Year Search

Rubens Masterpiece "Descent From The Cross" Back In Harvard Museum Again

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 6.—(INS)—The famed Rubens masterpiece, "Descent from the Cross," object of a world wide search since its disappearance six years ago, has been returned mysteriously to the Boston Evening American.

The Boston Evening American said today that despite the mysterious return of the painting, Mrs. Jean Bullitt Darlington, West Chester, Pa., socialite, demanded an investigation "without fear or favor" into the six-year disappearance of the masterpiece.

Return of the masterpiece came on the eve of opening of a $100,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Darlington against the president and trustees of the university.

The painting, object of a world-wide search since it vanished in Boston, now is back at Harvard's Fogg Museum, the American said with the explanation that it had been in the possession of a man—whose identity still is closely guarded—after being purchased unsuspectingly for $40.

Told Painting Was Back At her West Chester estate, "Pomona Farms," Mrs. Darlington told the Boston Evening American Friday that she was informed almost a week ago that the famous painting was back for her to claim.

"I have been told quite a story and it's very hard for me to believe all of it," she said wrathfully.

"Apparently, Harvard has taken no criminal action in the case and his seems the only way to get to the bottom of what happened. It is ridiculous to say that anyone could either sell or buy such a painting for $40 and not know something was wrong. If it turns out to be some misfortunate I shall feel sorry and there really isn't much that can be done. But I don't think this is the case and I want to know why something tangible hasn't come out yet. Aren't the police doing anything?"

Mrs. Darlington, the wife of a navy captain who got his discharge Friday, was told the news that the picture was back had not even been made public until yesterday.

"Harvard is very much disabused if they think that informing me they now have my painting back is satisfactory," she continued. "Philadelphia private detectives and attorneys in Boston and Philadelphia have hunted the whole world for it."

Sees Attorney "I have communicated with my Boston attorney (George A. McLaughlin) for full explanation of who has had the painting and from whom he purchased it. It certainly reappeared quick enough after I sued Harvard for its $100,000 value. I shall come to Boston in about 10 days to take up the whole matter, and also visit my son at Harvard."

Arthur Pope, acting director of Fogg Museum, was on vacation and not available today for comment.

It was to Pope that the painting was returned through the efforts of Ropes, Gray, Best, Coolidge and Rugg, Boston law firm. They were contacted by a lawyer who said he represented a man who had bought the painting for $40 and now wanted to see that it was returned to the rightful owner.

The lawyer maintained that his client believed he had made a legitimate transaction and never suspected its $100,000 value.

Controversy Over Forgiveness Of Unfaithful Wives

CHICAGO, July 6.—(INS)—Judge Joseph Sabath, who has heard more than 100,000 divorce cases in the last 20 years, took issue today with the Cleveland judge who wants returning GIs to forgive their wives for infidelity during the time they were in service.

Judge Sabath said: "I just can't imagine how any judge could suggest that servicemen and their wives condone unfaithfulness."

The controversy was started by Judge Julius Kovachy of Cleveland who recommended that infidelity be condoned "in the realization that the war period was one of emotional stress and that extraordinary emotional circumstances was an unsettling factor."

Kovachy's recommendation was offered as a curb to the rising divorce rate.

Four Are Burned In Explosion At Marcus Hook, Pa.

MARCUS HOOK, Pa., July 6.—(INS)—Four men were seriously burned today when an explosion touched off hundreds of gallons of gasoline being loaded on a barge in Marcus Hook.

The craft was being loaded at the time, and nearly 7700 barrels of fuel were aboard. Cause of the blast was not determined immediately.

The explosion and the fire that followed filled the skies with a glow visible for 20 miles, and flames leaped high into the air. The fire spread to a dock and threatened a nearby tanker of the Sun Oil company.

The tanker was forced to pull out and anchor in mid-stream, but was scorched in the process.

The injured were removed to Chester hospital in ambulances.

Pittsburgh Mayor Threatens Drastic Fire Board Shakeup

PITTSBURGH, July 6.—(INS)—Mayor David L. Lawrence today threatened to overhaul two Pittsburgh firemen's trial boards for tolerating "drunks and loafers" on the fire department.

Lawrence said he was "tired" of having the reputation of 700 competent firemen smeared by the conduct of 25 or 30 who act like "bums," adding: "Unless the trial boards take sterner measures I'll initiate action to have the trial boards overhauled."

The mayor's blast came after the boards fined one fireman $6 for being AWOL despite the fact that he had been before the board 27 times on charges of drunkenness or absence from duty.

He cited several other cases of firemen who had been let off with light fines or suspensions. Mayor Lawrence said most of the firemen had appeared before the board at least 16 times.

Fayette County Police Scoff At Boy's Confession

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 6.—(INS)—Fayette county police today scoffed at the confession of James E. Bryant, 16, who Los Angeles police said confessed to the murder of Anna Elizabeth Dyer, 17-year-old Fayette City "Sunshine Girl."

Detective Chief Charles Dewitt said it was the "third or fourth" time Bryant has confessed to the crime, adding:

"He's been reading too many detective stories."

Fred Hauser, 19, an ex-sailor from Monessen, Pa., is serving life in prison for the crime.

The nude body of the attractive, red-headed waitress was found in a secluded wooded section near her home last September.

Boy Scouts In Many Activities At Summer Camp

Group To Conclude Week At Summer Site Today: Full Program For Campers

Boy Scouts of Lawrence county have enjoyed a busy week at their summer camp site on the banks of the Slippery Rock and will break camp today to return to the city.

Wednesday morning activities began with a bird hike at 5:00 a. m., with a large number of the Scouts participating. Following this cutting the boys passed their rope and axe tests under the supervision of Camp Director Harold Barry. Later in the afternoon a number of the Scouts went on a nature hike under the leadership of woodcraft director J. Arthur Turek. A study of birds and trees was made during the trek.

Wednesday evening the Scouts gathered around a beautiful campfire setting in the amphitheater and played the "hunter and rabbit" game. A ghost story was read to the group by Director Turek and another story recounted by Harold Barry.

July 4 Program Thursday, July 4, the Scouts spent most of the morning in their rope tying tests and also identified some 60 plants of the woods. Fire-building and lashing were also subjects of the morning period.

In the afternoon a big water program was climaxed with the launching and christening of a pontoon, "Water Hippo," in the creek.

A softball game featured the evening, with the counselors defeating the campers by a 4-3 score. Following the game the boys were treated to movies through the courtesy of the Pennsylvania Power company. A brilliant display of sparklers and fireworks ended the evening's entertainment.

Friday the Scouts staged a 14-mile hike and merit badge work was accomplished in the fields of cooking and bird study.

The afternoon was devoted to a water meet under the direction of William Crowell, waterfront director. Proper launching of a canoe, endurance swimming and diving were some of the features of the meet.

Boxing matches were also staged in the barn with the Scouts boxing three one-minute rounds.

The weekly program will terminate today with a large campfire meeting planned for the evening. Parents of the boys are expected to visit the camp, and skits by patrols will be enacted for the audience. Main event is to be a comedy with the counselors making up the cast.

Youth Is Held In Child's Death

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 6.—(INS)—Eugene P. Domonkos, 15, who police said confessed the slaying of his seven-year-old cousin, Nancy Crowell, today was held for grand jury action on a charge of murder.

District Attorney Stephens Mayer said after the grand jury acts it will be up to the court to decide whether the youth will be tried in criminal court or be given a hearing in juvenile court.

Police said that Domonkos admitted killing the girl and burying her body in a shallow grave during a "fit of temper."

FAIR or FOUL

BY LAWTON CARVER

Sports Editor, International News Service

By LAWTON CARVER
(International News Service Sports Editor)
NEW YORK, July 6.—Word comes from Mexico City today via an International News Service correspondent about a strange bout planned in the capital south of the border.

One senior Neguib Simon, owner of the "sports city"—which is equipped with 50,000 seating capacity—suggested a bout involving two young but Simon Simon insists that the heavyweight championship won't be at stake.

Will Meet Brazilian
He plans to hold the fight in January with Louis lined up against a Brazilian fighter as yet unidentified.

Simon does not reveal how he plans to get around the automatic staking of a title any time the heavyweight champion goes to bat. Obviously there can be no over-weight bout and even if it were billed for less than the title distance of 15 rounds Louis' conquer would be recognized as champion—if a conquer should appear like a miracle.

However, Simon dismisses all that and says:
"The bout would be informal and if Joe should lose it would not affect in the least his championship belt."

Not Interested
Simon admits in the interview that he doesn't know anything about prizefighting and adds that he not only is unacquainted with it but detests it.

He said he was among the few people utterly disinterested in seeing pictures of the Louis-Billy Conn bout.

Simon added to that by saying:
"Bull fighting is as artistic and elegant as boxing is barbarous."

Tunney Visits Mexico
He found Tunney, our one-time heavyweight champion, to be intelligent, sober and interesting. Tunney is an official in a new airline from Mexico City to various cities in the United States, and paid a visit to the Mexican capital recently.

Simon said that Tunney had suggested all kinds of sports be put on the big arena which would house the proposed Louis bout and the senior is toying with this notion as part of the upsurge in athletics south of the border.

Discussions Held
He hinted that he and Tunney had discussed several matters pertaining to sports with the Louis fight upmost.

He explained:
"It is quite possible that we will arrive at some sort of an agreement with Tunney. He helped me considerably regarding boxing."

Whatever all this adds up into, I wouldn't know. Bill Corum wrote a piece a few days ago saying that it looked as though Louis might make an appearance in Mexico City, and all this may be part of that picture.

It can be safely said in any case that despite Simon's love for bull fighting Louis will not fight a bull in this proposed non-title heavyweight fight.

John Lewis Unknown Leading At Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., July 6.—(INS)—John Lewis, 32-year-old Philadelphian, who learned to carry on under pressure while earning five Marine battle stars, today faced a different sort of pressure.

The slender Quaker City pro carried a one stroke lead into the second round of the $10,000 Columbus Invitation Golf tournament. He shot a second-nine 33 yesterday to corral a 69 for the first 18 holes of the 72-hole tourney.

But the heat was on today. Dog-gone Lewis' heels were some of the greatest money players in the business. Fellows like Ben Hogan, Ray Manganum and Harold "Jug" McSpadden, all of whom had 70s. And a dozen other veterans were sporting 71s and par 72s.

Reiser Out Of All-Star Game
NEW YORK, July 6.—(INS)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, announced that Out-felder Pete Reiser of the Brooklyn Dodgers will not be on the National League squad for the all-star game in Boston today.

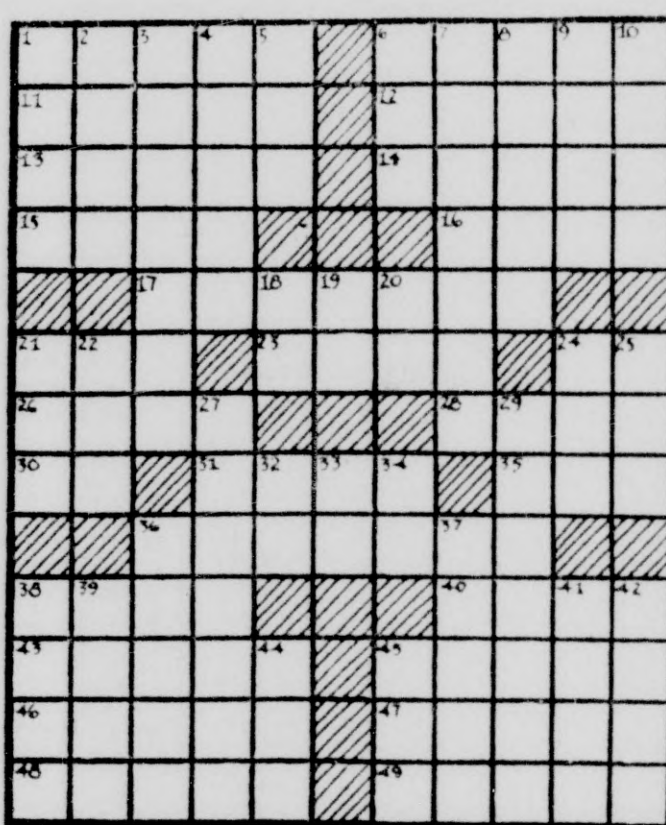

Frank McCormick, first baseman of the Phillies, will take his place. The Brooklyn club asked that Reiser be excused because of the severe arm which has bothered him all season.

Croatians Plan Golf Tournament
ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., July 6.—(INS)—More than 100 entries are expected in the third annual Croatian fraternal union national open golf tournament to be held at Albuquerque August 28.

Paul Blaskovich, of Universal, previous winner and a recent competitor in the United States open, has already entered the meet.
